Det. Khary Ricketts, DeKalb County Police and PALs Plus Program Manager, provided details about the City of Clarkston Summer After Dark Basketball League during the June 15th stakeholders' meeting.

By Terry Sanders

Tasked by Clarkston City Council to bring recreational alternatives to the city, Keith Barker, Clarkston City Manager assessed the feasibility of partnering with fellow Minority Youth Violence Prevention grantee, DeKalb County Police Athletics League (PAL) Plus. After meeting with DeKalb County Police Detective Khary Ricketts, PAL Plus Program Manager and Coordinator, the City had acquired its first basketball league external stakeholder and violence prevention partner.

Now that the league's organizational component was in place with PAL Plus, the City faced the barrier and challenge of finding a Clarkston location that would be respected, safe and secure, have the required basketball court, could accommodate the number of anticipated participants and would be available for the course of the program and league play.

Barker determined that Clarkston First Baptist Church fit the bill and would provide the necessary requirements. A preliminary meeting was held with a First Baptist representative who was very receptive to the proposed partnership, but was not the decision-maker. The decision would be made by Clarkston First Baptist Church Pastor Karl Moore in unison and collaboration with the church's congregation.

With momentum on its side, the City brought PAL and Clarkston First Baptist to the table to discuss and determine if a Clarkston basketball league was possible. Det. Ricketts gave the history, benefits, and objections encountered when and with implementing the PAL Plus program and basketball league. Not being detoured, stakeholders agreed to establishing a partnership that would bring the first official City of Clarkston Summer After Dark Basketball League to the city of Clarkston.

"This is a win, win, win for the City, PAL and Clarkston First Baptist," said Pastor Karl Moore, Clarkston First Baptist, during the first basketball league stakeholders' meeting held on May 16th.

Before this meeting ended, players and recruitment, public awareness plans, program curriculum and presenters, teams size and games schedules were all determined.

"This summer league allows the city to check off several boxes of its civic and community engagement goals and objectives," said Barker.

Recapping the City of Clarkston's Georgia Cities Week "Show on the Road"

The City of Clarkston in participating, for the first time, in Georgia Municipal Association's Georgia Cities Week, took community and civic engagement to a whole 'nother level. There were numerous first for the City and partners during and beyond this week of celebrating cities throughout the state of Georgia.

While invited to participate in the past, this year GMA's invitation was accepted by the City. With the goal and mission of showcasing engagement, community partnerships, City services and personnel, and its elected officials, the City set about devising a strategy, plan and deployment that would be inclusive, comprehensive, mobile and visual.

After researching GMA's Cities Week and receiving their participation tool kit, the City implemented the most robust schedule of events and activities when compared to neighboring cities' known events and GMA's suggested activities.

Early community partners engagement was crucial to pulling off the City's plan, goal and mission. One-by-one targeted community partners were contacted to solicit and invite partnerships. The City received acceptance from every community partner asked.

Although one community partner could not participate during the designated week, they graciously invited the City to come on a later date.

Now that community partners were on board, the questions of what and how was the City to convey and mobilize its plan and messaging, remained. Eureka! Let's take the City on the road and display City staff, services, and elected officials by mounting messaging on tri-fold boards that come with carrying cases. And to make sure that the City's display would have a polished and professional look and feel, black tablecloths with the City's logo imprinted on them were ordered, created and shipped with arrival a few days before they were to be used.

Okay the City's Georgia Cities Week checklist was looking good, but there remained a glaring missing component. What can the City do to show its appreciation to audiences that engage with and take part in activities? Swag bags!

Ready, set, go...the City of Clarkston would like to, again, thank staff, community partners, elected officials and every audience member that engaged and contributed to making Georgia Cities Week in Clarkston, a Week to Remember!

“The City gets to expand our partnership with Clarkston First Baptist Church and to partner, for the first time, with PAL Plus a national organization that already has the infrastructure, experience and abilities to implement and manage this program and league. We, the City, get to provide additional recreational offerings and lastly, but more importantly, the City continues its efforts to prevent youth violence.”

DeKalb PAL Plus is a specialized unit of DeKalb County Police Department (DKPD) that utilized preventive programs and activities to combat juvenile crime. A combination of education, athletic and crime prevention initiatives are strategically implemented via youth programs. The activities help to prevent crime and generates positive attitudes toward police officers. When youth are involved in healthy, structured and supervised activities, they are less likely to join gangs, get involved with illegal activity or even experience disciplinary problems in school. Through the structured PALP activities, our youth develop self-respect, respect for authority and pride in their community.

Clarkston Summer After Dark Basketball League workshops and games, are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, they started on June 26th and are scheduled to end on August 2nd. Clarkston First Baptist Church Gym is the location for the 9:00 p.m. mandatory Life Skills Workshops and 10:00 p.m. games that will result in championship rounds to determine which team will be awarded the winners’ trophy.

“During these workshops, each participate will learn from subject matter experts about a variety of topics, including anti-gang awareness, drugs and violence causes and consequences, that they will hopefully carry with them throughout the course of their lives,” said Detective Ricketts. “The opportunities, information and discussions that occur in these workshops are so important, that attendance and participation is mandatory. It’s simple, if they don’t attend, they don’t play.”

In addition to these mandatory 9:00 p.m. workshops, the Summer League has FREE registration, and is open to the public. Participants must be 14 – 19 years of age. They can just show up on any of the applicable Tuesdays and, or Thursdays to play in any, if not all of the games that start, after the workshops, at 10:00 p.m. Clarkston Summer Basketball League participants will also learn about local employment opportunities.

Summer Health Tips

Extreme Heat Safety

- Stay out of the direct sun. Seek shaded or air conditioned areas such as libraries or malls. MORE
- Whenever possible, schedule outdoor events (public gatherings, sporting events) early in the morning when it's cooler and the air quality is better.

- Drink plenty of fluids. (Avoid alcohol and caffeine.)
- Wear light-colored, light-weight clothing. Use hats with brims and sunscreen for more protection.
- The elderly, small children, and people with chronic health conditions are more vulnerable to the heat. Call and check on friends, family, and neighbors.
- Anyone showing signs of heat stroke (altered mental state, not sweating, nausea) should seek medical attention immediately.

Swim Safely

Swimming is a great way to beat the summer heat and it is a fun way to get exercise. Whether you are swimming in your own backyard pool, in your family or neighbor's pool, or in a natural body of water, follow these tips to keep this popular summer past-time safe:

- Never swim alone! Even experienced or strong swimmers might need help.
- Do not leave young children or non-swimmers unattended.
- Encourage children and other non-swimmers to use life jackets or other approved flotation devices.
- Sign up for swimming lessons—you are never too old or too young to learn how to swim!
- Do not jump or dive into the shallow end of a pool.
- Keep away from pool drains, pipes, or other openings to avoid entrapments.
- Always keep a phone nearby.
- Learn CPR. It's a lifesaving skill, literally.
- Install a fence, with self-closing and self-latching gates, around backyard swimming pools. Check local ordinances or laws to make sure you are in compliance.
- Avoid drinking alcohol before or during swimming and while supervising children.

Sun Safety

Protect yourself from exposure to the sun's rays and reduce your risk of sunburn, skin cancer, and heat stress:

- Apply sunscreen with SPF 30 or higher and both UVA and UVB protection before you go outside, even on cloudy days.

Reapply sunscreen after swimming or sweating or after staying outside for more than two hours.

Wear clothing, sunglasses, and a hat with a wide brim to protect exposed skin.

Seek shade, especially during midday hours.

Drink plenty of fluids.

Food Safety

Eating out more this summer? View food safety inspection reports for your favorite restaurants.

Foodborne illnesses increase in warmer weather. Keep food safe during cookouts and camping trips by handling, preparing, and cooking it properly.

Rabies

Prevent animal bites and rabies by avoiding contact with wild animals.

Lyme Disease

Ticks are most active in late June and early July. Prevent Lyme Disease and other tick-borne illnesses by avoiding ticks and tick bites.

West Nile Virus

Mosquitoes are most active in the summer months. Protect yourself against West Nile Virus and other mosquito-borne illnesses by using bug spray with DEET, avoiding mosquito breeding grounds, and taking other preventive measures

Recognitions

During the May 1, 2018 City Council Meeting, Deborah Samuels, an employee in the Clarkston Court Services Department, was awarded for her 15 Years of Service with the City of Clarkston. Samuels' has provided "outstanding" customer service delivery and daily execution of duties and responsibilities have contributed to her department's operational success.

Marcus Seaton of the City of Clarkston's Public Works Department has been a very busy man for years. Not only was he recognized for his five Years of Service with the City, but he has earned and received his Bachelor's Degree in Business Management from Clayton State University while working full-time.

"My son was my inspiration to graduate and to walk the talk instead of the other way around. I knew if I was to direct him and tell him the importance of an education, that I must lay the ground work and show him it can be done off my own experience. Furthermore, I have a family that I'm responsible for taking care of and supporting with nothing less than 100 percent of my abilities.

However, this process couldn't have been as smooth without the support of my boss and co-workers at the City of Clarkston," said Seaton.

For his 10 Years of Service in protecting and serving the city of Clarkston, Asst. Police Chief, Thadius Brown was praised as being a "tremendous asset" to the City of Clarkston and to the Clarkston Police Department. In receiving his Certificate of Appreciation, Brown thanked his fellow law enforcement officers and a special expression of appreciation was given to Chief Christine Hudson for her leadership and for being a mentor.

"When I first started with the City of Clarkston, I noticed that David was the biggest dude here, so we quickly became good friends. And he has had my back ever since. He and Corey Ford are the heartbeats of the Public Works Department," said Keith Barker, Clarkston City Manager, when awarding David Meadows with his 15 Years of Service award.

Barker went on to describe Meadows and his Public Works co-workers as the true "unsung heroes" of and for the City of Clarkston. In being moved by Barker's accolades, Meadows gave an emotional, heartfelt acceptance as a token of his appreciation to the City of Clarkston.

Recognitions

City of Clarkston Mayor Ted Terry and City of Clarkston Special Projects Coordinator, Terry Sanders have been accepted into the Leadership DeKalb Class of 2019.

A respected leadership development program in DeKalb County, Leadership DeKalb was founded in 1986 by the DeKalb Chamber of Commerce to educate community leaders and to address issues facing the growing population. In 1994, Leadership DeKalb became an independent nonprofit organization. Since then, more than 1,000 community leaders have completed the program. Graduates of the program include CEO's of top public and private companies, as well as a large number of DeKalb's elected officials, educators, judges, entrepreneurs, volunteers and nonprofit leaders.

Class members learn about history, diversity, government, justice, arts and culture, education, health and economic development in the county. Classmates and alumni gain access to other leaders in all of these sectors. With over 1,000 alumni, we facilitate long-term leadership sustainability.

The City of Clarkston Special Project Coordinator, Terry Sanders has accepted an invitation from DeKalb County's Communications Department Public Information Officer, Suzanne Forte, to serve on the 3CMA Savvy Awards Judging Team.

Established in 1988, the Savvy Awards continues to recognize outstanding local government achievements in communications, marketing, engagement, and creativity. Every year, the entries are even more innovative than the year before, demonstrating that clearly, the best is yet to come!

2018 Women in Public Safety Conference

Clarkston Chief of Police, Christine Hudson, attended the annual Georgia Association of Women in Public Safety Conference held in May and hosted by the city of Athens.

The Georgia Association of Women in Public Safety (GAWPS) was created with a vision to provide professional growth opportunities for women that are employed in fire, law enforcement, or emergency communication services in the state of Georgia through mentoring, networking, and training.

GAWPS is a non-profit organization sponsored and administered directly by public safety practitioners. Our mission is to create opportunities that facilitate professional growth through training, education, and mentoring for women in Public Safety in the State of Georgia.

The general purpose of the Georgia Association of Women in Public Safety is to promote the achievements and needs of women in public safety; to provide an environment that encourages growth, professional development and success for women across public safety disciplines through education and networking opportunities; serve as an identifiable resource for public safety leaders seeking solutions for recruiting, retention, career development, and promotional opportunities.
